

Tre til Tango – and a bit of Jacob Gade

A passionate and refined celebration of love and life! When listening to Tre Til Tango play, you can hear all the facets of tango music: its daring, elegance, restrained passion and melancholy. The accordion-like instrument, the bandoneon is joined by piano and violin in works by master composer Astor Piazzolla, traditional tango tunes from Buenos Aires of the 1940s, and Danish tango compositions by Jacob Gade and trio violinist Niels Skovmand.

Since their first CD release in 2006 Tre Til Tango has added to their sound the bandoneon, the unique instrument and icon of tango. They have given concerts in the capitol of tango, Buenos Aires, toured Denmark and Sweden, and have started creating their own compositions. The musicians of the most in-demand tango trio, Tre Til Tango, have been in constant movement since their debut three years ago. And the result of that development is audible on their new CD – an intense musical journey, in which Danish tango composer Jacob Gade plays a role.

As a unique feat, Tre til Tango has sent a tango by Jacob Gade, Romanesca, over the Atlantic to have it arranged in Argentine style. The piece can be heard now on the CD Movimiento.

"It has been something of a dream come true, to send the old Danish tango to Argentina and have it arranged in the style of the country of tango. It is like building a musical bridge over time and space at once. And at the same time it reflects something essential in the nature of tango: that it exists all over the world in a variety of interpretations", says Charlotte Støjberg, pianist of Tre Til Tango.

And Movimiento has already sparked excitement on the other side of the Atlantic. The renowned Argentine musician and producer, Ignacio Varchausky, has followed the work of the trio and writes in the preface to the CD:

"I have seen them work very hard, both in Buenos Aires and in Denmark; I have seen how they have fallen in love with music, studied it and developed their own voice over time. I enjoy listening to this CD – just as much as they have enjoyed recording it. Open your ears and hearts, and I am sure you will enjoy it too".
